RESEARCH INTERESTS:

National Institutes of Health

(5/02 -7/02) Division of Child Health and Human Development

- Explored the role group B streptococcal colonization played on premature births and neonatal mortality among African American and White American pregnant women

Northwestern University

(7/10 -7/11) Department of Microbiology/Immunology/Urology

- Explored the role clinical asymptomatic bacteriuria strains (ASB) played in the attenuation of acute and chronic pelvic pain caused by uropathogenic bacteria. Manuscript in submission

University Hospitals

(10/12 -09/14) Department of Urology/Department of Neurology/Department of Psychiatry

- Performing a sub-analysis of the Interstitial Cystitis Elucidation of Psychophysiologic and Autonomic Characteristics (ICEPAC) trial data to determine if women with Interstitial cystitis/bladder pain syndrome (IC/BPS) and Myofascial pelvic pain (MPP) demonstrate a signature neurologic phenotype when compared to healthy controls.
